Description In the popup preview screen you get to see the code, but none of it is indented. It makes it hard to read. Can I not run the auto-indenter on that?

This used to be a default.

However during the refactoring for the merge of the code with DfRefactor some code got moved around and this no longer worked. Patching that to use the correct class and method again did not yet fix it.

We had to re-introduce the old "walk over the lines" logic on here for it to work again.

Of course this is a local patch, not a change back to before.
